AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

By EABS (European Association of Brazing and Soldering), B&ES (Building & Engineering Services) and Refcom

“Understanding the benefits of Aluminium and the different Joining Methods for all materials”

Dear Industry colleagues,

EABS, B&ES and Refcom have the pleasure in inviting you (Free of charge) to attend one the previews for the forthcoming awareness presentations for the joining of aluminium and copper piping by means of non-permanent (flare & flare adaptor) permanent (Reflok & Vulkan) mechanical joints, flame brazed joints (oxy-acetylene and other gases) and introducing “SafeFlame” ® a “new safer flame from water”.

As you can see from the announcements this aluminium initiative is driven by the needs of the market and is supported by many international companies who have a major presence in this industry.

The joining of aluminium is different but not difficult once you and your customers understand the essential differences. The previews are targeted at both engineers and decision makers who need to understand not only the trend towards the greater use of Aluminium for piping and the manufacture of heat exchangers, but also the potential for increased efficiencies and significant savings by employing all methods of joining.

Numbers are limited to 10 delegates per session, so please advise us ASAP if you can attend any of these initial dates.

We expect a good response from the market and therefore further dates will be added.

It is important that we receive constructive feedback regarding the content of these awareness days and would value your comments.

When filling in the booking form please make reference to this invitation letter.

We look forward to your attendance

Regards
Stuart Ellis
EABS
