

Innovation Strategy Intern (f/m/d)

About HERMANN'S

HERMANN'S is an innovation vehicle for the food industry. Our Innovation Strategy team of nerdy, open-minded and grounded consultants works closely with our Food Ecosystem and HERMANN'S Eatery in Berlin. We help established food companies to find and adopt innovations that can be a struggle to generate in-house. We identify cultural shifts and niche innovators that indicate future developments in the market. We then support our clients to translate this information into brands, portfolios and products.

We are looking for an innovation strategy intern who wants to grow further toward the role of a junior strategist and seeks to be a part of a team on a mission. We want to find a person who believes in entrepreneurship for sustainability, brings in the necessary skills of a humane high potential, and is a flexible team worker. The internship is paid.

About the position

You support our Innovation Strategy team during projects and proposal development. You also flexibly support other areas such as the Food Ecosystem, events, and company building. While you contribute to making sense of the future of food for industry clients, you grow toward the role of a junior strategist. You take over respective responsibilities. You will work in a purpose driven environment where results count more than hours. We are a team of individuals with passions, not facades. We are so diverse, it hurts sometimes.

Who we look for

You believe that profitable business and sustainability can converge. You test and push limits and want to change the world with solutions. You know the corporate and/or consulting world, are fluent in English and ideally German. You act with rigor and creativity. You work pragmatically but with precision. You want to contribute visibly. You are eager to learn about food innovation but also committed to chipping in where we need you. You look for your own way, not for a standard career.

Formal conditions

You are available for 3-6 months full time in Berlin. You have or are about to complete your bachelor's degree with a strong track record. You have relevant work experience as full time staff or intern. You are versed in office applications.
